

Table of contents

Editors' Preface	XI
Acknowledgements	XIII
1 Introduction	1
1.1 The research aims	2
1.2 Remarks on chronology, region, and ethnonyms	2
1.3 Outline of the thesis	5
2 Setting the scene	7
2.1 Research history	7
2.1.1 The Baltic German phase	8
2.1.2 The phase of national states and beginning of institutionalised archaeology	9
2.1.3 The Soviet period	11
2.1.4 Current phase of archaeology	12
2.1.5 Concluding remarks	14
2.2 Theoretical premises	14
2.2.1 Defining 'pendants'	14
2.2.1.1 Undefined categories of pendants and dictionary definitions	15
2.2.1.2 Working definition of 'pendant'	16
2.2.1.3 Tension between the terms 'pendant' and 'amulet'	18
2.2.2 What do pendants want?	19
2.2.2.1 Visual culture as a wider point-of-reference	21
2.2.2.2 Targeting agency for current purposes	21
2.2.3 Concluding remarks	24
2.3 Methodology	24
2.3.1 Data collection	24
2.3.2 Principles of classification and terminology	27
2.3.2.1 Formation of categories, classes, and types	28
2.3.2.2 Terminology	30
2.3.2.3 Concluding remarks	31
2.3.3 Contextual approach	31
2.3.3.1 Macro-scale analysis: regional and site-based patterns	32
2.3.3.2 Micro-scales analysis: usage and individuals	33
2.4 Concluding remarks on research design	37

3	Late Iron Age pendants: an overview	39
3.1	Class A: Naturally formed pendants.	40
3.1.1	Amber pendants (A1)	40
3.1.2	Tooth and imitations of tooth (A2).	42
3.1.3	Bone pendants and imitations of bone (A3).	49
3.1.4	Claw pendants and imitations of claw (A4)	52
3.1.5	Jaw pendants (A5).	53
3.2	Class B: Symmetrical pendants	53
3.2.1	Cross-shaped pendants (B1)	54
3.2.1.1	Trouble with sorting	54
3.2.1.2	Classification of the Late Iron Age cruciform pendants	56
3.2.2	Hybrid pendants (B2)	75
3.2.3	Lunula and pelta-shaped pendants (B3)	79
3.2.4	S-shaped pendants (B4).	83
3.2.5	Comb-shaped pendants (B5)	86
3.2.6	Symmetrical zoomorphic pendants (B6).	89
3.2.7	Mask-shaped pendants (B7)	90
3.2.8	Ryurikovich tribal insignia (B8).	91
3.2.9	Double S-shaped pendants (B9)	93
3.2.10	Tree-shaped pendants (B10)	93
3.2.11	Heart-shaped pendants (B11).	94
3.2.12	Angel-shaped pendants (B12).	94
3.2.13	Pear-shaped pendants (B13)	95
3.3	Class C: Irregular pendants.	96
3.3.1	Zoomorphic pendants	97
3.3.1.1	Bird-shaped pendants (C1).	98
3.3.1.2	Quadruped-shaped pendants (C2)	102
3.3.2	Horsemen and the Viking figure (C3).	107
3.3.3	Axe-shaped pendants (C4).	109
3.3.4	Knife-shaped pendants (C5)	112
3.3.5	Key-shaped pendants (C6).	114
3.4	Class D: Geometrical pendants	116
3.4.1	Coin pendants and imitations of coins (D1).	116
3.4.2	Round sheet pendants (D2)	123
3.4.3	Miscellaneous round pendants (D3)	133
3.4.4	Miscellaneous round openwork pendants (D4)	137
3.4.5	Trapezoid sheet pendants (D5)	141
3.4.6	Miscellaneous trapezoid pendants (D6)	144
3.4.7	Openwork trapezoid pendants (D7)	146
3.4.8	Rhombus sheet pendants (D8)	146
3.4.9	Miscellaneous rhombus pendants (D9)	147
3.4.10	Miscellaneous rhombus openwork pendants (D10)	148
3.5	Concluding remarks	148
3.6	Excursus to pendant-like objects	150

3.6.1	Multifunctional objects with pendant characteristics	150
3.6.2	Pieces of jewellery used similarly as pendants	155
4	Technology	159
4.1	General overview of technologies and materials	160
4.1.1	Naturally formed pendants	161
4.1.1.1	Amber pendants	161
4.1.1.2	Pendants made of skeletal elements	162
4.1.2	Artificial pendants	165
4.1.2.1	Copper alloy pendants	165
4.1.2.2	Silver pendants	170
4.1.2.3	Tin-lead pendants	171
4.1.2.4	Processed amber pendants.	172
4.1.2.5	Processed bone/antler pendants	173
4.2	Local production and elusive craftspersons	174
4.2.1	Livs and the central role of Daugmale.	175
4.2.2	Estonia and scattered production	181
4.2.3	Amber and bone/antler pendants	187
4.2.4	Summarising remarks	188
4.3	Repair and reuse.	189
4.3.1	Fragments and broken objects	189
4.3.2	Repairing and reuse of pendants	191
4.3.3	Reuse of other artefact types as pendants	193
4.3.4	Summary of repair and reuse.	194
5	Contextual analysis	195
5.1	Macro-scale analysis: site-level patterns and comparisons	195
5.1.1	Living sites	196
5.1.2	Burials	200
5.1.3	Hoardings	207
5.2	Pendants in use: close-up of factual contexts.	212
5.2.1	Neck and head area	212
5.2.2	Upper body	217
5.2.3	Waist area	222
5.2.4	Pendants in grave goods assemblages.	223
5.2.5	Concluding remarks	224
5.3	Pendant wearers as reflected by the inhumation burials.	225
5.3.1	Pada.	226
5.3.2	Kukruse	229
5.3.3	Kaberla.	231
5.3.4	Salaspils Laukskola	233
5.3.5	Concluding remarks	236
5.4	Pendant wearing customs in the Baltic Sea area	237
5.4.1	Scandinavia	237
5.4.2	Finland	238

5.4.3	North-western part of Russia	239
5.4.4	Other regions of Latvia	241
5.4.5	Concluding remarks	243
6	General trends of Late Iron Age visual culture in the north-eastern Baltic Sea region.	245
6.1	Geometric styles and designs	249
6.2	Cross motif based styles and designs	254
6.3	Floral styles and designs	257
6.4	Zoomorphic styles and designs	260
6.4.1	Viking Age animal styles in north-eastern Baltic Sea region.	262
6.4.2	Baltic animal style.	264
6.4.3	Other cases	265
6.5	Silhouette-based styles and design	268
6.6	Anthropomorphic styles and designs	269
6.7	Concluding remarks: pendants in the background of Late Iron Age visual culture	271
7	Pendants in action: implications on meaning	273
7.1	Current approaches to interpretation	273
7.2	Rethinking the ways of approaching meaning	274
7.3	Objects on display and performing meanings	276
7.3.1	Non-verbal communication through pendants: ethnicity.	277
7.3.2	Non-verbal communication through pendants: social status, gender, and age	281
7.3.3	Non-verbal communication through pendants: religious beliefs	286
7.4	Artefactual qualities and personal significance	293
7.5	Concluding remarks: pluralistic past and changing meanings	296
8	Summary	299
9	Deutsche Zusammenfassung	309
10	Archival sources and references	325
11	Appendices
Appendix 1	Determinations of pendants made of skeletal elements from Estonia	353
Appendix 2	Determinations of pendants made of skeletal elements from the areas of Livs	358
Appendix 3	Factual contexts of pendants in burials from the areas of Livs	368
Appendix 4	Factual contexts of pendants in burials from Estonia	378
Appendix 5	General table of finds from Pada burial ground	384
Appendix 6	General table of finds from Kukruse burial ground.	389
Appendix 7	General table of finds from Kaberla burial ground	390
Appendix 8	General table of finds from Salaspils Laukskola burial ground (inhumations)	391
Appendix 9	Schematic plans of Pada burial ground	402
Appendix 10	Schematic plans of Salaspils Laukskola burial ground.	403
12	Lists
List 1	Classification scheme of all pendant types and subtypes	404
List 2	Pendant categories, classes, types and subtypes with a brief description	406
List 3	Sites and site types	410
13	Catalogue.	415